If I Die

If I die, weep not for me.
Life was not mine to keep forever.
Death is not yours to sorrow over.
I came, a bit of dust, into this world,
The dust that is the earth and plant
And yonder far off star that glows...
I go to join the boundless forms
That puzzle men and make them write
Of god whose spirit moved and wrought and built
A void into a world,
In days and nights in skies and gathered seas,
In man and beast, in winged fowl and creeping things.
If I die,
Take thou the dust from whence I came
And give it back to earth without regret,
I did not bargain for my days at birth
I took them gladly, boldly, as they rose
And made of them my song of hope and life.
Have I seen visions seers and sages see?
A world where human life is great and true and free?
Have I beheld my God and all His works
In stardust lifted to the height of stars,
Building houses far beyond its strength,
Hoping, falling, rising ever more?
Then I have earned my immortality,
I, too, beheld this world as it might some day be.
I, too, reflected "it was very good."

(Untitled)

You must not say that you now walk the final way,
Because the darkened heavens hide the blue of day.
The time we've longed for will at last draw near,
And our steps, as drums, will sound that we are here.
From land all green with palms to lands all white with snow
We now arrive with all our pain and all our woe.
Where our blood sprayed out, and came to touch the land,
There our courage and our faith will rise and stand.

A Common Date with Adversity

Who among us has not at one time or another known the sharp pain of grief, the poignant hurt of loss? Who has been able to insulate himself against the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune or escape the disappointment and melancholy to which human flesh is heir? Is there anyone here to whom sadness is strange and anguish alien? Is there an individual from whom life has not wrung tears or whose lips have never uttered a sigh? Every mortal has a date with adversity, loss and death...

If there is one experience that is common to all, then it is sorrow. An old and familiar story illustrates the universality of sadness. A patient came to a physician in the city of Naples. He complained of melancholia. He could not rid himself of a deep feeling of sadness. The physician said: "I advise you to visit the theatre where the incomparable Carlini is appearing. This great comedian daily convulses large crowds with laughter. By all means go to see Carlini. His amusing antics will drive away your melancholy."

At these words the patient burst into tears and sobbed: "But doctor, I am Carlini..." This awareness that sorrow is our common lot will not restore a lost one, or heal an ailment. It should, however, save us from an outpouring of that self-pity to which we would succumb were we to feel that none has ever suffered as we.

Memorial Service

This Memorial Service is based on the original “Seelenfeier” of Isaac Mayer Wise. This was written while he was traveling between Columbus and Cincinnati in 1854. It was composed in German and translated into English by Bernhard Bettman. Rabbi Wise wrote these paragraphs as he was preparing himself for the pulpit of K. K. B'nai Yeshurun.

Later, some parts were incorporated into the Memorial Service in the Union Prayerbook.

Choir-Hymn

Rabbi

Almighty God! Thou, in whose hands are the souls of all the dead and living, in the solemn hour of this day of Atonement we assemble in Thy sanctuary, as children come to the house of their father when in need of consolation and assistance. Thou hast ordained this day for us to sanctify our lives and prepare ourselves for death and immortality – as a Sabbath for the soul, that, free from the oppressive burden of guilt and the petty cares of earthly existence, it may be lifted to the bright realms of eternal truth above, and, assured of Thy mercy, obtain a foretaste of the endless bliss that awaits it, purified and hallowed in eternity.

Choir

Oh, what is man, Almighty God?
Oh, what is man?

Rabbi

Endless and unlimited are the longings of the human heart. As yet no one born of woman has gone to his long home, who had seen the complete fulfillment of all his wishes and desires, who felt that he had had enough of honors, wisdom, knowledge, wealth, and power. Upon the ruins of innumerable shattered hopes man erects as many new ones, and contrives and plans until death puts an end to all his aspirations. When Moses had completed the work of deliverance and revelation, the greatest ever achieved by mortal man, he stood, unsatisfied, on the summit of Mount Nebo, and gazed in sadness upon the promised land, to enter which God had denied him in His wisdom. Discontent dwells in the palace as well as in the pauper's hovel. Care sits upon the brow of the crowned ruler as upon that of the lowly son of toil. In the midst of overflowing plenty the insatiable human heart cries for more, until at last, when hushed in eternal sleep, there comes to it the end of every strife and struggle, hope and fear, joy and sorrow, pain or pleasure – when our common mother earth receives with equal love all her returning children, and covers alike the remains of the sceptered monarch and the homeless beggar.

Choir

Oh, what is man, Almighty God?
Oh, what is man?

Rabbi

Thou hast created man in Thine image, and given him dominion over the earth and all it contains. He rules the seas, and the unfathomable depths of the ocean yield up to him their secrets and their treasures. He has chained the lightning, and makes it render service unto him. The hidden forces of nature are brought to light by him and made to do his bidding. He measures the distance of the stars, and calculates their rising and setting in their courses, and from withered stones reads, as from a book, the history of the earth during untold bygone ages. But, alas! He cannot add one hour to the length of his days, and in the presence of death he is as helpless as the weakest of Thy creatures. The strong and the weak, the rich and the poor, the sage and the fool, the just and the wicked, all bend their steps toward that final goal that awaits every one born of woman, and the places that knew them will know them no more forever.

Choir

Oh, what is man, Almighty God?
Oh, what is man?

Rabbi

Thou hast implanted within our hearts love strong, pure and imperishable, for those who are near and dear to us, and we cling to each other and are happy in mutual affection. And then – often we know not why or wherefore – sometimes without a moment's warning, but always terrible, comes the hour of parting. We see them pass away – the old man in the fullness of his years, as the withered leaf falleth from the tree – the beloved child, the pride, the joy and hope of the household, like the beautiful flower nipped by early frost – the strong youth and the lovely maiden, who, after passing through all the dangers of childhood, seem prepared and ready to take up the battle of life – the kind and generous husband and father, the guide, protector and supporter of the family; and the faithful, gentle wife and mother, torn from the despairing companion of her life, and her often helpless orphaned children. With aching hearts and tears of anguish we see them descend into the grave; and in the bitterness of our sorrow, and, alas! sometimes in rebellious spirit, we ask: "Is this wisdom? Is this justice? Is this mercy?" Forgive us, O heavenly Father! If in the imperfection of our finite understanding we cannot comprehend Thy infinite wisdom.

Memorial Service

Give us strength to bear our grief in resignation and humble submission to Thy will. Give us faith, so that we may feel that Thy decrees are all-wise, just and beneficent. Remember that we are but dust before Thee, the Eternal, that we are only fleeting shadows in Thy sight.

Choir

Oh, what is man, Almighty God?
Oh, what is man?

Rabbi

O Lord, our God! The universe is the work of Thy hands and governed by Thy wisdom. In obedience to Thy immutable laws, everything from the magnificent starry constellations down to the atoms dancing in the sunbeam, moves in perfect harmony. Nothing, be it ever so small, is entirely destroyed, or can go astray of the purpose for which it was created. Man, Thy image, endowed by Thee with a spark of Thy own immortal spirit, with reason and free will, and to whom in Thy loving-kindness Thou hast revealed Thyself, can not alone be doomed to eternal destruction. Thou art all merciful, O God! Thou hast not created us with this longing after the ideal, the ceaseless striving after the unattainable, only to abandon us at last, a prey to worms and corruption. In imperishable letters hast Thou written upon our hearts the hope of immortality. Thou art Supreme Love, and wilt not suddenly and forever break the ties which bind and knit human hearts together with love which extends beyond the grave. Thou art Supreme Reason, and a creation without a final purpose is not reasonable. Thou art our Father, and wilt not destroy Thy children. O God of Wisdom, Justice, Love, and Mercy! we put our trust in Thee, and in Thee alone; for besides Thee we have no one in heaven or on earth in the hour of doubt, anxiety, and trouble.

Congregation

Our loved ones who are gone before us are not dead, for they live in our memory in our hearts. In this solemn, sacred hour, our souls are uplifted on the pinions of faith and prayer to the foot of the throne of Grace, to commune with the Infinite. With a sense of reverence and awe, mingled with holy joy, we feel their presence, are reunited to them in spirit, and with love and gratitude remember what they were to us while on earth.

We remember with sorrowing hearts those whom death has taken from our midst during the past years.

Silent Meditations for Festivals

We are reminded in this season of the transiency of all life. Seasons come and go; growth and decay, these are the eternal rhythms of life.

Yet in this Festival we recall the sweet memories gathered together in our lives with our dear ones. We remember them vividly in this hour of recollection and relive our common pilgrimage of life's summits. Together we walked through the vales of sorrow, together we climbed the heights of joy. We turn again to the Book of Life in which we recorded our daily experiences and meditate upon what we meant to each other. May we be renewed in memory and thought, reinvigorated in the spiritual harvest we have garnered. Everliving God, Thou abidest amidst the ceaseless tides of change which sweep away the generations of man! In the springtime of the year when field and forest reawaken from the seeming death of winter, when earth and sky resound with the song of life reborn, a renewed faith and confidence surge through our hearts. The clouds that darkened our spirits are dispelled by the miracle of reviving nature. The gloom of the valley of the shadow is pierced by the light of Thy presence. Beyond the winter of death smiles Thine eternal springtime. It cannot be that in a world of unending life, we, Thy children, are given over to destruction; that fashioned in Thine image we are doomed to annihilation. The spirit, implanted within us, cannot be only a passing breath. Thou are our dwelling place in life and in death.

In memory of Father

Thy memory, my dear, beloved father, which now fills my entire soul, recalls to me all thy love and affection, which were to me so often the source of purest happiness, when thy hand rested tenderly in blessing on the head of the child. May remembrance of thee live forever in my soul, and be to me a guiding star on the path of righteousness in my pilgrimage to eternal life, so that I may be worthy to stand with thee in the presence of the heavenly Father of us all. Amen!

Memorial Service

In memory of Mother

Thy memory, beloved, sainted mother, which at this moment fills my entire soul, recalls to me all thy love and tenderness and sweetness of affection, which once were to me the highest and dearest object in life, in which thou didst stand a guardian angel to thy children, who were all in all to thee. Thy image will be forever before my soul, guiding me in my pilgrimage through life, until I can stand with thee before the throne of our heavenly Father. Amen!

In memory of Husband or Wife

The memory, dear, never-to-be-forgotten partner of my life, the cherished companion of my youth, which at this sacred moment fills my entire soul, recalls to me all thy tenderness, love, and devotion, which have been the joy and glory of my existence. I remember with gratitude and undying affection the happiness I have enjoyed at thy side, and pray that thou mayest be to me a guardian angel on my journey through this to eternal life, so that I may be worthy to join thee in the presence of our heavenly Father. Amen!

In memory of Child

Thy memory, my dear, beloved, child, which now completely fills my soul, recalls the purest, holiest joys vouchsafed to me during the time I was permitted to rejoice in thy presence, the many sweet, alas! frustrated hopes, and the deep sorrow with which I saw thee depart this life before me. Thy image will be ever present to me. May it be to me a guiding spirit on my pilgrimage on earth, and may I join thee again in the presence of our heavenly Father. Amen!

In memory of Brothers, Sisters, and Friends

Thy memory, dear departed....., which in this sacred hour fills my soul, recalls to me your love, affection, and all the many ties of companionship which united us whilst you still dwelt with me on earth. Forever shall I cherish the recollection of you and the hope that at the end of my pilgrimage I may meet you again in the presence of our heavenly Father. Amen!

Memorial Service

Rabbi

We remember you today in mournful affection, dear, beloved friends, who have during the past year departed from this congregation to return to your eternal home; who in days past have been with us, but whose places are now vacant in this house of worship; who have lived and worked amongst us, prayed and hoped with us in reliance upon the One Eternal God of Israel, and whose death has caused wounds still new and deep in the hearts of those to whom they were nearest and dearest on earth.

You, my brother,
You, my sister,
You, beloved child.

Your memory lives in this congregation, in this sanctuary. We feel that in spirit you are near to us at this moment, and we bless the hours that you have lived with us before God. Oh, be to us messengers of peace; bring consolation to suffering hearts, and comfort and tranquility to anxious souls.

We bless and honor your memory, you bright and shining stars in Israel, and you great men of all creeds, who have been benefactors of mankind, patriots and workers in the sacred cause of humanity; you who were messengers of providence to your fellowmen; or who have, as a ray of Divine Wisdom, illuminated the path of your brethren on earth: Arise, brethren and sisters, and in memory of the dear departed, render praise with me unto the One, Eternal God of Israel, as our fathers have done before us!

Choir-El Malei

O God, full of compassion, Thou who dwellest on high! Beneath the sheltering wings of Thy presence, among the holy and pure who shine as the brightness of the firmament, grant perfect rest unto the souls of our dear ones who have gone unto eternity. Lord of mercy, bring them under the cover of Thy wings, and let their souls be bound up in the bond of eternal life. Be Thou their portion, and may they rest in peace. Amen.

When Bereavement Comes...

The following is a brief summarization of some aspects of death and funeral situations which can be of help to every family in a time of crisis:

- ... When a death occurs, it is appropriate to recite the blessing: Baruch atah, Adonai Elohenu, Melech ha-olom Dayan ha-emet...Blessed is the Lord our God, Ruler of the Universe, the righteous Judge.
- ... When a death occurs, it is appropriate that the Rabbi be informed and the time schedule discussed with him.
- ... It is proper to make one's desires for a funeral known in advance. The purchase of a plot should be made before the time of need. This will spare the family much anguish and confusion.
- ... It is a mitzvah to donate one's organs for the sake of others.
- ... Funeral services are not held on Shabbat and major festivals.
- ... Services for the deceased can be held at the graveside or funeral home chapel.
- ... Cremation and placement in mausoleums are acceptable, although burial is normative procedure.
- ... Children should not be excluded from attending funerals.
- ... The recitation of the Kaddish is the responsibility of the mourners and should not be delegated to others. Mourners are encouraged to attend services for the first month (sheloshim: 30 days).
- ... The meal of consolation (séudat havraāh) is not a time for feasting or drinking. The first meal should be prepared by friends and neighbors.
